Atila is an established singer from the UK. Sartorially stylish and musically classy, his interpretations of the American Songbook are internationally renowned, taking influence from early Frank Sinatra.

Atila started his professional career with the National Youth Jazz Orchestra with whom he performed with Benny Golson on the Norwegian Sun Jazz Cruise and was featured on the album 'Something Old, Something New'. He has recorded many times since, including 'How do you keep the music playing' in collaboration with Evan Jolly, 'Hello Young Lovers' produced by Rupert Christie, 'Yours Tonight' EP produced by Tommy Laurence featuring some of Atila's lyrics, 'King for a Day', a tribute to the Nat Cole Trio, and most recently Atila's own single release I can't Believe we made it which has hit radio stations around the uk.

Atila has toured extensively with the legendary Buddy Greco, jointly appearing on BBC radio 2 with the John Wilson Big Band at Cheltenham Jazz Festival. He has given sold out shows at Ronnie Scott's, The Hippodrome Casino London and The pizza express jazz club Soho, and was invited to America to sing 'The Nelson Riddle Story' by the Nelson Riddle Foundation.

Atila has a busy and varied career in private events and commercial performances, including the 2014 Qatar Choice awards, Dermot O'Leary's wedding party and the Turkish International Film Festival 2013. He has appeared on 'The Alan Titchmarsh Show' ITV, 'Stepping Out' ITV, London live tv, and sung for the 2012 Emirates television advertising campaign, amongst others
